

Dear parent:

The Central Bucks School District is very proud of the highly qualified teachers who work with students each day. All of the teachers in your child's school have met the requirements set by the Pennsylvania Department of Education to be considered highly qualified.

The No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 gives parents of children who attend schools receiving Title 1 funding the right to request information about the qualifications of their child's teacher. Your child's school receives federal funding through the Title 1 program and information about the qualifications of your child's teacher is available upon request.

In addition, if your child receives assistance in reading or mathematics through the Title 1 program, you may request verification that the Title 1 instructional assistant who works with your child meets the requirements to be highly qualified. All of our Title 1 instructional assistants have met these requirements.

Please contact me if you would like to receive information to verify the qualifications of your child's teacher or Title 1 instructional assistant.

Sincerely,

Paul K. Beltz
