

My Mom is the Best Mom Ever!!!!

Trisha F.

I have the greatest mom of all. My mom deserves the celebrity treatment because she's loving and caring, provides for me, and supports me.

First, my mom is loving and caring because when I get hurt she's always there to make me feel better. For example, when I stub me toe and cry she'll comfort me and put band aids and Neosporin on it so it can feel better and heal faster. Another example of my mom's love is when she give me hugs and kisses when I'm sad. When something bothers me and it hurts inside me I tell her and she comforts me until I'm better. Also, my mom helps me get through things when I'm mad. For example, when I'm mad at my friends or my parents she'll talk me through it so it doesn't stay inside me for a long time.

Second, my mom provides for me because she gets me clothes that I want to get for school, church, or for playing outside. For example, when I don't have anything to wear to church she takes me out to a store to get clothes for church that are nice not all messy, ripped, or gross. Another example is when I do sports she has to pay a lot of money for my uniforms, equipment, cleats, and a bag to put all the equipment in. She also buys me Christmas gifts and sometimes they are a lot money like a new bike, electric scooter, or a Hover Board. They all cost hundreds, maybe thousands, of dollars and I have to be good to get one of these things.

Third, my mom supports me because she wants me to study hard and get a 90% - 100%. For example, when I study at my house I study by myself and then when I'm done, she will quiz me until I get that question right. I also get help with my homework if I need help with it like if I try to do it and I don't get it right I try it again and I get the same answer. Then I ask for help with that part of the homework. Another example, is when my parents have a meeting with my teacher. Then I get to say "hi" and "bye" when I have to go to class or when they have to leave.

In conclusion, my mom is the best mom because she's loving and caring, provides for me, and supports me. This is why my mom deserves the celebrity treatment.
