

The 3 Most Effective lightsaber forms

Have you ever thought about the top 3 most effective lightsaber forms? 3 forms of lightsaber combat each with their own set of ability's and they are all very effective in different ways. There are 7 forms of lightsaber combat but Soreso the iron wall, Vaapad Brings balance to the force, and Shien's complex footwork are the most effective forms. Now Soreso is my favorite out of All the lightsaber forms and here's why.

Soreso has three main components: Defense, Endurance, and Strategy. First let's Dive into Defense. Soreso is the third form of Lightsaber combat, it focuses on blaster deflecting and tiring your opponent out to a point where He/her is too fatigued to go on, that is when He/Her would make the killing blow. The second component is Endurance, if you use Soreso you will have to endure the fight without getting too tired, It does seem hard but, if you use the momentum of the orbits or spins you don't have to waste energy stopping and starting your blocks and strikes. The last component of the Soreso lightsaber Fighting style is that it has strategy. The strategy is that they keep their blade in motion and gain inertia. Another reason Soreso is effective is the spins confuse your opponent and they will most likely not know where to launch an attack. Obi-wan-Kenobi cut off all four of Greivis arms all welding lightsabers. Even Jedi master Mace Windu stated that "Soreso is the ultimate defense."

Next up we have Vaapad, Vaapad focuses on three principals. The first is that it is overpowering, the strikes are fast and are very strong. This will intimidate your opponent and they will also have to keep up with the rapid strikes. Just like Soreso you tire out your opponent but instead of blocking the attack you be launching them. Secondly Vaapad brings balance to the force because, the user uses the dark side while staying in the light this means the user is more powerful and in tune with the force. Vaapad is not based to be strategic, although it does bring a nice set of skills to the table. A notable user of Vaapad is Mace Windu he was the one to invent it as well. In fact, Master Windu beat Palpatine only to have Anakin slice off his hand and allowing the Emperor to blast him out the window with full force sith lightning.

Finally, there is Shien, Shien like all others focuses on three main principals. It has unique footwork so if you need more leverage in a blade lock. Or if you need to cover a large amount of distance while dueling, you can change your footwork to help you out with those situations. Next there is its swiftness, it is fluid and combines its amazing footwork with its lightning fast strikes and blocks. Then in the end our final principal is that like all others is that being strategic. It is so fluid with the footwork and strikes, just like Soreso it confuses your opponent. Usually when I duel I switch from soreso and shien so I have a good defense and great offence. Another reason why shien is effective is that Anakin Skywalker used this form and he was one of the best duelists in the Jedi council. He only lost to Obi-Wan because his ego got the best of him.

There are 7 forms of lightsaber combat, but Soreso, Shein, and Vaapad are the most effective. Soreso, Vaapad, Shein, are the most effective forms because they are all strategic and have their strengths and weaknesses. But the thing they all have in is that you must fully commit to the form. Lightsaber is to Jedi as Jedi is to lightsaber forms.