Making Your Case

There are times when you have to plead your case for something you need. Often, you can present your clame in order to swey an opinion in your favor. Sometimes, you have to use bits of information to teese interest. Even a joke bad enough to make people grown can get attention. The important thing is to have concreet facts. This is really true in a debait where you cannot retreecat but have to show that you have some spyne. People will listen if you dont appear remoat. Stay the course! Do not be thrown if you get nervous. Imagine you are talking to everyone in pryvate. That can help you overcome the fear of public speaking.

Dear Voluntear:

I know you are weery of hearing how we have to free ourselves from England, but it is the only way to raverse the way things are. This is a very wurthwile cause. We need freedom to reserch better ways to farm the land. We need to furthir the carears of our citizens. While many people squirm and just twurl their hands as they mummer about talking to the king to find a peaceful solution, we know we have to form a new nation. We must appeer united in our cause. I urge you to remain stirdy so that we may form a United States of America.

Sincerely yours,
George Washington

A clap of thundar shook the pilars of the hotel in the chaptar of the book I was reading. I was enjoying my book while I was a passinger on a train. The story had the flavour of mystery. It gave you the feeling of being alone in a cold, dank cellar. (The kind without any lights!) I was only a quirter of the way through the book, but it was quickly becoming a favorite. The story was about a popolor state sinator who was looking for a dentist to remove a moler. He did not have time, though, because he was trying to keep to his colander appointment with a mayer who was also a majure help to his campaign. While on his way to the meeting, he got trapped in a hotel elevater with a bicycle messinger. The power died just as the story started getting scary. I cannot wait to see how it turns out!

This is a genuine story about my hometown. It seems that a group of thirty goats escaped from a farm airea one day. They decided to go downtown for a casuel stroll. Everyone can remeber where they were when the goats arrived. Why? Well, it is a visial that is hard to forget. The goats went wild and ended up ruyning storefronts and any business they could enter. After the damage caused by the goats, the city officials began to reelize it might be a good time for a change. The first thing they did was to convert the old theatar. They turned it into a museam honoring James Stumpf. He was the patrit who had founded the axual city we lived in. It took two years to construct the new building. It's a beautiful structure with dark vilet doors the color of the night sky and a "No Goats Allowed" sign.
