

Grammaire 1

- reflexive verbs
- tout, tous, toute, toutes

Un peu plus

- the verbs s'appeler and se lever
- pp. 162–167

Résumé: Grammaire 1

Reflexive pronouns are used when conjugating reflexive verbs. The reflexive pronoun must agree with the subject.

se brosser to brush (one's hair)
je me brosse	nous nous brossons
tu te brosses	vous vous brossez
il/elle se brosse	ils/elles se brossent

Use an appropriate form of tout (tout, tous, toute, toutes) to say all or the whole.

When conjugating the verbs s'appeler, se lever, and s'ennuyer, there are spelling changes in all forms of these verbs, except the nous and vous forms.

Vous vous appelez comment? Je m'appelle Bertrand.

Grammaire 2

- reflexive verbs in the passé composé
- the imperative with reflexive verbs

Un peu plus

- reflexive verbs with infinitives
- pp. 174–179

Résumé: Grammaire 2

With reflexive verbs, the passé composé is formed using être. The past participle agrees with the subject in number and gender, except when the reflexive pronoun is not the direct object of the verb.

Elle s'est lavée. BUT Elle s'est brossé les cheveux.

Negative commands are formed by placing the reflexive pronoun directly before the verb and placing ne... pas around the reflexive pronoun and the verb: Ne te lève pas tard!

Affirmative commands with reflexive verbs are made by attaching the reflexive pronoun to the end of the verb with a hyphen.

Lave-toi! Dépêchez-vous!

When using reflexive verbs in the infinitive form, place the reflexive pronoun before the infinitive.

Je préfère me doucher avant de me brosser les dents.

Lettres et sons

The vowel sound [ɛ]

Listen to the vowels in the word dépêche. How are they different? The second vowel represents the vowel sound [ɛ]. To make this sound, hold your mouth in an open, smiling position. Some spellings of this vowel sound are è, ait, ais, and ê. Try pronouncing these examples: gel, crème, lèvres.

Jeux de langue
