Dear Game Designer:

I have reviewed your written proposal for a new board game based on the human body. I am pleased to inform you that you are one of my final choices! You will have an opportunity to present a prototype of your board game to the board of supervisors by the deadline date of Thursday, March 10. If they select you as their final choice, your game will be produced by my company and you will become rich, like me.

Before you begin designing your prototype, here are few guidelines that you should follow. Your board game must...

- ...have a game board that is well designed and connected to the human body
- ...use content from all the parts of the body that you have studied in school
- ...design a box that will be attractive and appealing, with a catchy title
- ...include typed directions that will appear on the inside cover of the game box
- ...include pawns or game pieces
- ...have a strong educational value
- ...must be neatly done

Thank you for submitting your ideas to Parker Brothers. I appreciate the planning, cooperation, and hard work that goes into a project such as this.

Sincerely,

Milburn Pennybags
